

Showers tonight and tomorrow.

NUMBER 6133.

CABINET ORDERED TO TAKE THE STUMP

All Instructed by Roosevelt to Start Whirlwind Campaign.

PRESIDENT IS ALIVE TO DANGER OF DEFEAT

Information From Ohio Is Most Discouraging to Administration. Move Is Significant.

President Roosevelt today again took a hand in the management of the national campaign by ordering the entire Cabinet on the stump for a final whirlwind of speaking. He communicated his wishes to the members of his Cabinet who are still in the city, and each of them returned to his department with instructions to get busy.

This move on the part of the President is the most significant feature of the campaign, and it is taken to mean that the Administration is alive to the danger of losing at least three States, namely, Ohio, Indiana, and New York. It was learned on the best of authority today that the confidential information from which is reaching Washington from Ohio is to the effect that the native State of Judge Taft is lost to the Republican party beyond recovery. Neither President Roosevelt nor the members of his Cabinet will admit that the situation is so bad as it has been painted, but it is now plainly evident that they are thoroughly alarmed. President Roosevelt showed that he was alive to the situation today when he ordered his entire Cabinet on the stump. Next week every member of his official family will be scurrying about the country in a last endeavor to whip the voters into line.

Not Anticipated. That the President's action today had not been anticipated, is illustrated in the case of Secretary Root, as it also illustrates that the President is not satisfied with the plans of the national committee for the final week. The Secretary of State has repeatedly stated that he would make but one speech during the campaign, that one to be delivered at Durland's Riding Academy in New York a week from tomorrow night.

When he left the White House today, however, Mr. Root said that his plans had been changed. It is now his intention to go into Ohio before talking to the voters of his own State. He will speak at Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Toledo, and on the following night he will speak at Toledo. These plans will make it impossible for him to preside at the Carnegie Hall meeting in New York Friday night, but he will keep his Saturday night engagement.

Meyer's Plans. Postmaster General Meyer also announced an extension of his speaking program after the Cabinet meeting. He, too, will go to Ohio in an endeavor to bolster up the shaky Republicans. On Monday night Mr. Meyer will speak at Paulding, Tuesday night, at Sandusky. He will then come East and will speak at Trenton, N. J., on the thirtieth, and will end up by speaking at Cambridge, Mass., the night before election. Maryland is giving troublesome thoughts to the President and Secretary Wright today announced that he would go to Baltimore, and make an address there. This, it was hoped, would make Bryan wince. The President's attitude has put the Administration guessing, and it is figured out that nothing could be more effective in injuring Bryan's chances of carrying the State than to have an old-time Democrat go there and lambast him.

Secretary Wright's work in Maryland will be followed by that of the General Bonaparte. Mr. Bonaparte also has impressed into service to give help in New York, where the labor vote is giving trouble. He will speak in New York city twice on Tuesday next, once in the afternoon and in the evening.

West Virginia Fight.

The factional fight down in West Virginia is not improving to the satisfaction of all concerned, and a last effort will be made to impart some straight from the shoulder Administration talk. Secretary Metcalf left the Cabinet meeting today with instruction to go into that State and deliver a hot speech. Neither the date of the speech or the place it is to be delivered has not been decided upon, and probably will not be until Mr. Metcalf gets into touch with the State committee.

It was learned on absolutely reliable authority today that President Roosevelt feels that West Virginia has been neglected by the latter's committees. The headquarters in New York accordingly received a suggestion today that some of its best timber must be sent to that State instantly. This program takes care of all the members of the Cabinet, who are now in Washington. Secretary Gaidard, Straus and Wilson already being out in the field. Secretary Cortelyou will speak in New York next Thursday night.

WEATHER REPORT.

This morning Mount Weather, Va., was enveloped in a dense fog, with upper currents strong enough to crush the first kite that was sent up.

Temperature has fallen in the Mississippi Valley and the Southwest, and has risen over the Eastern portion of the country.

The indications are that the Southern rain areas will extend over the Middle Eastern and Southeastern States during the next thirty-six hours.

Temperature changes will be slight, except in the middle Gulf States and the Ohio Valley, where a decided fall is indicated.

Northeast storm warnings were ordered Thursday evening on the Atlantic coast from Cape Hatteras to Norfolk.

FORECAST FOR DISTRICT. For the District of Columbia, Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia, showers tonight and Saturday; fresh to strong northeasterly winds.

TEMPERATURE. 8:00 a. m. 61. 9:00 a. m. 61. 10:00 a. m. 61. 11:00 a. m. 61. 12:00 noon 62. 1 p. m. 63. 2 p. m. 63. 3 p. m. 63. 4 p. m. 63. 5 p. m. 63. 6 p. m. 63. 7 p. m. 63. 8 p. m. 63. 9 p. m. 63. 10 p. m. 63. 11 p. m. 63. SUN RISES. Sun rises. 6:37. Sun sets. 6:31. TIDE TABLE. Low tide today, 12:48 a. m. and 1:02 p. m. High tide today, 6:35 a. m. and 6:47 p. m.

The Washington Times

WASHINGTON, FRIDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 23, 1908.

FINANCIAL LAST EDITION
With Closing N. Y. Stock Prices.

PRICE ONE CENT.

FIRE CHIEF'S SON DROWNED

WILLIAM T. BELT, JR.,
Who Lost His Life in the Potomac Today.

SON OF CHIEF BELT DROWNS IN POTOMAC

Body of William T. Belt, Jr., Recovered From the River by Police Boat Crew.

William T. Belt, Jr., twenty-two years of age, son of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, fell overboard from the gasoline yacht Dakota, lying at the foot of Tenth street southwest, sometime last night or this morning, and drowned.

His body was recovered by the crew of the police launch, Major Sylvester. Young Belt boarded the boat last night, and it is believed that he struck his head in some manner and was stunned when he fell overboard. J. S. Turner, engineer on the yacht, found Belt's coat and hat on the dock this morning. He immediately notified the police and the body was recovered after dragging fifteen minutes.

Belt resigned his position as second mate on the steamer Washington, of the Norfolk and Washington line, about a week ago, and was hired by Ralph Galt as sailing master for the Dakota.

Taken to Morgue. The body was taken to the morgue, and later turned over to Undertaker Zurborst. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Young Belt first entered the service of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company in 1904 as quartermaster on the steamer Norfolk.

He had previously served a short apprenticeship with the White Star line. By his own efforts, he worked his way to second mate under Captain Posey, of the Norfolk, later, becoming first mate of the Newport News.

After resigning about a year ago he again entered the service of the company about four months ago, as second mate on the steamer Washington.

Chief Belt arrived at the morgue a few minutes after the body was recovered, and immediately made arrangements to have the body taken in charge by an undertaker.

No Bruises on Body. Although there were no bruises on his head or face, Coroner Nevitt said that the only way he could account for the drowning was that Belt was stunned by striking his head on the side of the boat when he fell overboard. He was an expert swimmer, and had always been able to take care of himself in the water.

Mrs. Belt, the boy's mother, was notified at the morgue and is now at the Capitol street, and is almost prostrated.

MRS. TUCKER PLANS TO CARRY ON FIGHT

Wife of Army Man Says If He Recovers Health She Will Sue Again.

Mrs. William F. Tucker, who went to Chicago recently to press the charge of a wife abandonment against her husband, Colonel Tucker, of the paymaster's division of the army, and who has withdrawn her case, because of his critical illness, will revive the suit, if her husband recovers from his present illness.

Mrs. Tucker, who returned to Washington today, is emphatic in this, as she is in the statement that her withdrawal of the charge was made because it was plain to her that her husband is on his death bed.

"I shall certainly return to Chicago and prosecute the case if Colonel Tucker recovers," she said this morning. "I realized, however, from the statements made to me by physicians that Colonel Tucker is believed to be on his death bed. Had I pushed the case at this time, it would have meant to wish to appear in a false light."

Mother Accompanies Her. Mrs. John A. Logan, accompanied her daughter to Washington. She said she was glad to be home, but had no announcement to make for the newspapers.

"My daughter and myself will spend our time here, as usual. We do not contemplate change of any sort. As usual, we will make our home here (in this city) during the winter, and in the summer will go out to the house at Thirteenth and Euclid streets northwest."

Lured to the house at 1317 Kenyon street northwest last July by a telephone message, she was given a coat of tar and beaten by two men, while a third stood by and prevented his escape from the room. Charging them with assaulting Bliss, the police arrested Charles Marthinson, sixty-two years of age, a wealthy lumber broker; James L. White, sixty years of age, and Henry Cole, fifty-five years old. Arraigned in the Police Court, the men demanded a trial by jury, and were released in the sum of $1500 each. The case will probably be called next month.

DR. GALLAUDET ILL; TO BE OPERATED ON

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23.—Dr. Edward Miner Gallaudet, president of Gallaudet College, Washington, the best known education institution for the deaf and dumb in the country, is a patient at the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

He entered the hospital yesterday and is now under the care of Dr. Hugh H. Travis, who, it is said, will probably operate on him in a few days.

BLISS AGAIN VICTIM; DOPED AND ROBBED

Figured Prominently Last July in Coat of Tar Process.

WATCH AND MONEY STOLEN LAST NIGHT

Tells Police of Going Into Saloon and Having "Knockout Drops" Given Him.

Francis E. Bliss, Jr., who was given a coat of tar and beaten on the head only July 23 last, in the basement of the house at 1317 Kenyon street northwest, walked into Police Headquarters at 7 o'clock this morning and said that he had been given "knockout drops" while in a saloon in E street northwest last night and robbed of a gold watch and $2 in cash.

Bliss said that he lost consciousness after a round of drinks early in the evening, and when he came to this morning he was on an East Capitol street car. He got off the car at Judiciary Square and came immediately to headquarters, where he reported the case to Lieutenant Peck, in charge of the Detective Bureau at night.

According to the story told by Bliss, the experiences he had last night almost rival those on the day that he was given the coat of tar. Bliss looked rather the worse for wear this morning, and although he admitted having taken several drinks during the evening, he showed signs of having been roughly handled by the person or persons who are supposed to have drugged him. His hat was missing, his clothes were torn, and there were several bruises on his face.

Is Business Man.

Bliss is a member of the firm of Bliss, Albrecht & Co., paper rulers, of Baltimore and Washington. The company has offices in this city in the Hutchins building, Tenth and D streets northwest. Before his adventure with the coat of tar he lived in Kenyon street, but for the last two months he has been boarding near his office. Two days ago he engaged a room over the Merry Widow lunch room, in E street, between Ninth and Tenth streets northwest. Bliss occupied the room with John R. Robinson, formerly his business partner.

Intending to go to Baltimore on the 8:30 train, Bliss left the lodging house yesterday afternoon, in company with one of the other roomers. The two went to a saloon in Tenth street, and from there went to a saloon near Thirteenth and E streets.

Sitting down at a table, Bliss said that he invited a man to have a drink. A young woman, who was also in the saloon, joined them. Bliss said that he had several drinks, and when I looked at my watch, it was 10:15. I then went to the door and decided to stay over until the 9:30 train. The last thing I remember was a few minutes past 11, when the man who was with me paid for a round of drinks, and must have lost consciousness then, because I can not recall anything that happened after that time.

Had Several Drinks. "While we had four or possibly five drinks, I am sure it was not the liquor that affected me. There was certainly something in the last drink that put me to sleep. I have no idea how I got on the car or where I spent the night."

Bliss said that he had frequently visited the saloon where he says he got the "knockout drops." He said he knew the man fairly well who invited him to have a drink. He also knew the woman in the party, and he seemed positive that none of the persons sitting at the table gave him the drug.

Central Office Detective Blair was assigned to the case and is making an investigation. Bliss accompanied the detective this morning to the places he haunted last night.

Lured to the house at 1317 Kenyon street northwest last July by a telephone message, she was given a coat of tar and beaten by two men, while a third stood by and prevented his escape from the room. Charging them with assaulting Bliss, the police arrested Charles Marthinson, sixty-two years of age, a wealthy lumber broker; James L. White, sixty years of age, and Henry Cole, fifty-five years old. Arraigned in the Police Court, the men demanded a trial by jury, and were released in the sum of $1500 each. The case will probably be called next month.

Former Experience. According to information gathered by the police, Bliss had been a regular visitor at the Marthinson home. Bliss said that he was called up on the telephone by a woman who told him to come to the house immediately. He was let in at the basement door. Marthinson, White, and Cole, he says, were in the cellar, and a pot of tar had been prepared.

Sixteen of the parties concerned promised sensational developments, when the case should be called.

The police said that the attack on Bliss was made because of his alleged attentions to Mrs. Marthinson. Bliss at the time claimed that an engagement existed between himself and Mrs. Marthinson, and that he went to the house to keep an appointment with his prospective bride. Mrs. Marthinson, however, refused to make any statement.

SPERRY ATTENDS FUNERAL OF NODZU

TOKYO, Oct. 23.—Admiral Perry today attended the funeral of Gen. Count Nodzu, one of the leading generals in the Russo-Japanese war. He was accompanied by his staff and followed by a large number of officials.

Many of the American fleet officers sent flowers for the bier, conspicuous among the pieces being the offering of Admiral Sperry.

The Shinto religious rites were observed, there being also a full military service on the Aoyama parade ground. Four battalions formed a military escort to the grave. Admiral Togo and Marquis Ito headed the guard of honor.

MRS. ADA GORMAN-MAGNESS

She Is Aiding Her Husband, Who Is Held at Louisville, Ky., As a Deserter from the Navy.

RAIDERS THREATEN TO TAKE GOVERNOR

Night Riders Demand Executive Discontinue Efforts to Capture Them.

UNION CITY, Tenn., Oct. 23.—Governor Patterson, surrounded by a personal guard of twenty-five men, today is in charge at the encampment of State troops at Samburg and personally will lead the hunt for the night riders who hanged Capt. Quentin Rankin at Reelfoot Lake.

Detachments of the troops are scouring three counties of Tennessee and are even going across the line into Kentucky in quest of Rankin's murderers and rewards amounting to $20,000 are now offered for their capture, dead or alive.

Fearing a possible raid by night riders, the State troops maintain two lines of sentinels about their camp at Samburg, following the posting of notices that if Governor Patterson did not discontinue his hunt for Rankin's assassins, he himself, would be kidnapped. The men who killed Rankin are believed to be of the most desperate character, and it is not thought improbable that they will present an armed front to the soldiers.

Col. R. Z. Taylor, who fled through a shower of bullets from the night riders talking in many small towns and villages, following the posting of notices that if Governor Patterson did not discontinue his hunt for Rankin's assassins, he himself, would be kidnapped. The men who killed Rankin are believed to be of the most desperate character, and it is not thought improbable that they will present an armed front to the soldiers.

Col. R. Z. Taylor, who fled through a shower of bullets from the night riders talking in many small towns and villages, following the posting of notices that if Governor Patterson did not discontinue his hunt for Rankin's assassins, he himself, would be kidnapped. The men who killed Rankin are believed to be of the most desperate character, and it is not thought improbable that they will present an armed front to the soldiers.

PUBLISHED REPORT DENIED BY JEROME

Says He Never Asked That Indictment in Insurance Expose Be Halted.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—District Attorney Jerome denied today that he had ever asked that an indictment in the insurance scandals investigation be halted.

"The reports published," he said, "that I reported McCurdy from an insurance scandal, are false. I conferred several times with the investigation and I did mention that there was a link missing in the evidence against McCurdy, but I never asked that an indictment be held up. None was prepared against McCurdy."

Jerome's denial today that he had ever asked that an indictment in the insurance scandals investigation be halted, came in the face of reports that he had done so.

The reports published, he said, that I reported McCurdy from an insurance scandal, are false. I conferred several times with the investigation and I did mention that there was a link missing in the evidence against McCurdy, but I never asked that an indictment be held up. None was prepared against McCurdy."

Jerome's denial today that he had ever asked that an indictment in the insurance scandals investigation be halted, came in the face of reports that he had done so.

The reports published, he said, that I reported McCurdy from an insurance scandal, are false. I conferred several times with the investigation and I did mention that there was a link missing in the evidence against McCurdy, but I never asked that an indictment be held up. None was prepared against McCurdy."

Jerome's denial today that he had ever asked that an indictment in the insurance scandals investigation be halted, came in the face of reports that he had done so.

The reports published, he said, that I reported McCurdy from an insurance scandal, are false. I conferred several times with the investigation and I did mention that there was a link missing in the evidence against McCurdy, but I never asked that an indictment be held up. None was prepared against McCurdy."

Jerome's denial today that he had ever asked that an indictment in the insurance scandals investigation be halted, came in the face of reports that he had done so.

The reports published, he said, that I reported McCurdy from an insurance scandal, are false. I conferred several times with the investigation and I did mention that there was a link missing in the evidence against McCurdy, but I never asked that an indictment be held up. None was prepared against McCurdy."

Jerome's denial today that he had ever asked that an indictment in the insurance scandals investigation be halted, came in the face of reports that he had done so.

The reports published, he said, that I reported McCurdy from an insurance scandal, are false. I conferred several times with the investigation and I did mention that there was a link missing in the evidence against McCurdy, but I never asked that an indictment be held up. None was prepared against McCurdy."

HOOSIERS EAGER TO GREET TAFT

Great Crowds Attend Meetings on Battleground of Many Candidates.

By JAMES HAY, JR.
KOKOMO, Ind., Oct. 23.—Apparently feeling no effects from the tremendous amount of work he did yesterday, William Howard Taft began early this morning his second day's work in Indiana, which consists of seventeen speeches, of which three will be delivered in Indianapolis this evening.

The crowds which turned out to hear him were larger even than yesterday. Towns of not more than 10,000 population scraped together audiences numbering 25,000.

The route lay all day through the farming section of the State, a section which has already been stamped by Gompers, Debs, Bryan, Watson, and a host of State politicians, but the Hoosiers do not seem to tire of political discussion.

The candidate aroused the cheers of his hearers in answering the Bryan argument that the present panic was a Republican panic. He pointed out that it could not possibly have been a Democratic panic, because it was one which followed overexpansion and overprosperity in business. Such a condition could never arise under the Democrats because as soon as they got in power the bottom drops out of business and every enterprise immediately goes into the game of marionettes and dying.

Thus far, he admitted that it was a Republican panic, but he explained that already the Republicans have cured the panic by overexpansion and have gone a long way toward reverting confidence.

In order to insure the complete restoration of prosperity," he told his audiences, "you must elect the Republican ticket, elect the Democrats and you will bring on financial disaster and depression."

His first stop was in Brazil, where he spoke at 7:15 o'clock. From there until he reached Kokomo he made speeches at the rate of one every half hour, and assessments, about $450 each, were taken in many small towns and villages.

The candidate's voice is in rather poor shape this morning, but otherwise he is in the condition and declares that he feels absolutely rested. The betting in Indianapolis today, according to a telegram received in the train, is 2 to 1.

(Continued on Second Page.)

Government Shop Bookbinders Will Form an "Outlaw" Union

Relieving against what they term the unfair methods of both the local and international officers of their organization, about one hundred members of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, members of the local union and employed in the Government Printing Office, have planned to withdraw from the present organization, and tomorrow night will meet to form an independent bookbinders' society.

The new union will not, it is said, be affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

One of the prominent members of the new movement said today that the action of the men was caused by a long series of overt acts, intimidation, and bad management on the part of both the local and international officers.

Most of the bookbinders interested in the formation of the new society, it is said, are men who have been listed and published by the officers of the local union for the non-payment of dues. The delinquent class in the bookbinders' union has been rapidly growing for the last year or two, the result of the friction that has existed among the members, and the alleged mismanagement of both the local and the international organizations.

The officers of the local union have recently published a list of the delinquent members in a small booklet, which had the effect of arousing the ire of the delinquents and caused them to launch the Independent movement.

"The local bookbinders' union is managed and controlled by the officers and there is never an inside clique," said a member today.

The bookbinders of the country, he contended, "are made to pay, in dues and assessments, about $4.50 each per month. Notwithstanding this large fund, the organization is continually broke. There is never an inside clique, and the organization is not perceptible to the closest observer."

"The international organization takes about 80 percent of the funds raised by the local union, and as a consequence there is never any surplus here."

The organization of the free lance or "outlaw" society tomorrow night, as the "regular" union people are referring to it today, will be the first serious break in the ranks of the American Federation of Labor in recent years.

ANGRY SEAMSTRESS MAGNESS' NEMESIS

Jilted Baltimore Girl Gives Information That Leads to His Capture.

HAS TWO HUNDRED OF HIS LETTERS

Shows Many Love Messages to Prove He Was Engaged to Her.

Love letters, two hundred of them, burning with sweet nothings, written in plain old English and lovers' code, are now flaunted defiantly by a Baltimore seamstress, who alleges that Charles J. Magness, recently secretly married to Miss Ada Gorman, wealthy daughter of the late Maryland senator, but now under arrest in Louisville as a deserter from the navy, promised to wed her, played her false, and married the wealthy heiress instead.

While the former Miss Gorman is endeavoring to get her husband out of trouble, Miss Georgianna Kappler, nursing a large-sized jilt, seems bent upon getting her erstwhile lover into more trouble. She offers the two hundred letters to prove his fickleness, and hints at suit for breach of promise as balm for her wounded feelings.

Samples From Sweet Missives. Miss Kappler reaches down and picks at random, from a tray full of the same kind, a sweet-scented missive earmarked like this:

"S. Y. A. K. (meaning 'send you a kiss')."

"Your promised husband, Joe."

"I am thinking of you all the time."

"Good-by, sweetheart. From your husband, Joe."

They are spicy epistles, these heart-outpourings from Magness, or Hartlove, to his Baltimore seamstress sweetheart, who says she met Joe when they both worked down in the shirt factory together, and before the latter had risen to the rank of a musician on the Dolphin and had begun to cultivate acquaintance with an heiress. The missives are just the kind that would cause a courteous crowd to sit up and read hard and in every intoxicating word as some nasal-toned and sentimental lawyer reads them out in court.

She's "Thinking It Over." Miss Kappler says she's "thinking it over" as regards a possible little breach of promise proceedings. Her relatives have agreed that she's been badly treated by Miss Gorman's husband, and just to prove the fact Miss Kappler has made public account of her marriage. She says she is not sure that she will not doubt be recalled with interest by Magness while he awaits court-martial at the League Island navy yard.

Magness arrived in Washington, D. C., probably could furnish more information than herself. Hartlove was traced from this city to Louisville on newspaper accounts, according to her, to the daughter of the late Senator there.

"Getting His Just Deserts." Says Miss Kappler: "I never wished anyone any harm, but Joe was getting his just desserts. In letters to me he told me influence would keep him from doing wrong, but he has forgotten all about that, and now he will have to take the consequences. I have no sympathy for him whatever, and now I am mighty glad that our marriage did not occur."

"Why, he told me a pack of falsehoods. He would come over from Washington and nearly every day he would bring me a present. He brought me several handkerchiefs with the name 'Ada' embroidered in one corner. He told me that Miss Gorman gave them to him. He also gave me several silk handkerchiefs, which he said were given him by the lady."

"When he came to Baltimore he would spend money in a lavish manner and never seemed to run out of money. He would take me to the movies, and I would never go on these trips with him. After his desertion from the navy, I knew that Captain Washington of the Dolphin would endeavor to get him back to the ship. Several letters from him were received by me, but they were all addressed to Miss Gorman."

Magness. I readressed the letters to the Navy Department in Washington. "One letter came and gave me some of the whereabouts of Mr. Magness. This letter came from one of his friends on the Dolphin. I wrote back and told the commander of the ship that I knew nothing of Mr. Magness. I did write, however, that Miss Ada Gorman, of Washington, D. C., was the country home of the Gormans, near Laurel, Md."

Gorman Family Still Silent. Mrs. Magness has announced her intention to stand by her husband "to the very last." It is believed that she will come East with him when he is brought to Philadelphia, where the Dolphin now lies, and that she will seek the aid of her brother, State Senator Arthur P. Gorman, in endeavoring to effect her husband's release.

Mrs. A. P. Gorman, widow of the late Senator, is said to still be in Baltimore, where she went yesterday immediately after hearing of the embarrassment in which her daughter had been placed. The family, barely opposed to the marriage, is silent as to what stand it will now take in getting young Magness out of the toils. No information is vouchsafed as to where the country home of the Gormans, near Laurel, Md., is located.

Details of the Romance. Little by little details of the romance, which was carried on while Miss Gorman did charity work and took an active interest in the affairs of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church, where she obtained positions in the choir for Magness and two of her friends, are being obtained from Louisville where

$1.25 to Baltimore and Return Saturdays and Sundays via Pennsylvania Railroad. Tickets good returning until Sunday night. All regular trains except the "Congressional Limited."